

Exploring Victorian Gardens with Marta McDowell COUPON

Think curves, carpets and color. Who were the garden tastemakers of the 1800s? The period has been called "The Refinement of America." Why do some garden historians call us "The New Victorians?" This lecture explores the development of the 19th century American landscaping style from formal to romantic to picturesque.

Marta's books have explored the gardening interests of two very different writers from the period: Emily Dickinson and Beatrix Potter. Yet their garden styles were similar, even though on opposite sides of the pond.

Marta teaches landscape history and horticulture at the New York Botanical Garden. Find out more about her on her website:
<http://www.martamcdowell.com/>

October 20th, 2013 – 2pm to 4pm

Fullerton Arboretum – 1900 Associated Road Fullerton CA 92831

<<<<<50% OFF THIS CLASS>>>>>

Coupon MUST be presented at registration desk on day of event.

Cash or check ONLY! Coupon only valid with walk up registration!